Wildlife Review, a quarterly, serves to alert wildlife biologists of current worldwide literature of wildlife management and conservation. Each issue contains separate Author, Geographic, and Subject indices. Beginning in 1981, an annual index volume with cumulative Author, Geographic, Taxonomic, and Subject indices will be issued; included will be a list of publications screened. Authors who publish in journals not screened for Wildlife Review, and who would like their publications included, should submit reprints to the Editor.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service assumes no responsibility for the accuracy of material from outside sources.

[Arthur Rylah Inst. Environ. Res., Fisheries & Wildl. Div., 123 Brown St., Heidelberg, Victoria 3084, Australia] Abstract: The effects of eel (fyke) and mesh nets on fauna other than fishes were studied over 21 months from July 1975 to March 1977, at Macleods Morass, Vic. Tortoises were caught 272 times, birds five times and mammals twice in nets set to catch fishes. All fauna except two tortoises, two birds and the two mammals were released unharmed. Methods for preventing such animals being caught were suggested.

As the Nation's principal conservation agency, the Department of the Interior has responsibility for most of our nationally owned public lands and natural resources. This includes fostering the wisest use of our land and water resources, protecting our fish and wildlife, preserving the environmental and cultural values of our national parks and historical places, and providing for the enjoyment of life through outdoor recreation. The Department assesses our energy and mineral resources and works to assure that their development is in the best interests of all our people. The Department also has a major responsibility for American Indian reservation communities and for people who live in island territories under U.S. administration.
